Audrey van Duyn is an associate in Axinn's Antitrust group. Her practice focuses on antitrust cartel defense, including government investigations and civil litigation. Her experience also includes merger review, antitrust counseling, and corporate compliance.

Prior to joining the firm, Audrey was an antitrust associate at an international law firm, where she advised clients on all aspects of antitrust law in connection with investigations by U.S. and foreign competition authorities, follow-on civil actions, and compliance. She was also a litigation associate at a large national law firm, where she assisted with a variety of civil, criminal, and regulatory matters.

During law school, Audrey interned for Judge Nicholas G. Garaufis of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York and for Judge Paul G. Gardephe of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York. Additionally, she served as a research assistant for Professor Daniel J. Capra.

Audrey earned her JD from Fordham University School of Law and holds a BA in Political Science from Northeastern University.
