On December 8, Axinn associate Kail Jethmalani presented a CLE course entitled, “Defining Antitrust Markets in Platform Industries,” with the National Academy of Continuing Legal Education.

This CLE course is designed to update generalists, antitrust practitioners, and inside counsel on how lower courts are interpreting and applying Amex when defining antitrust markets involving platforms. The program provides a brief, high-level overview of U.S. antitrust law, reviews the key points of Amex, and reviews key recent developments, including the September 2021 decision in Epic v. Apple.
