On June 26, Axinn partner Lisl Dunlop will speak on the panel, “The New Antitrust Agenda for Health Care Mergers” at the American Health Law Association’s Annual Meeting, being held June 24-26 in Washington, DC.

Panelists will examine the prospects for health care mergers in the new age of antitrust enforcement, and address questions such as:

- What are the key merger enforcement principles that now apply to health care transactions?;
- How have the standards changed for considering mergers of direct competitors or potential competitors?;
- What new kinds of transactions will attract attention, including vertical integration, serial transactions, private equity acquisitions, and transactions that cross-market boundaries and;
- How have the new theories played out in recent enforcement actions against health care and other transactions?
